ABOUT

Throughout my career, the subjects I found most interesting are Backend Development, Databases, Software Engineering, and Data Analysis. Most of my experience comes from self-taught lessons and courses in languages such as Python, C#, JavaScript, working in related projects as web administrative API and working on personal projects while completing diverse courses online that I found helpful. I have also developed test plans for testing software to expose flaws in various programs as well as collaborating with my colleagues in agile settings to ensure that the quality of the system meets the standard before release
